The perfect mix

Walking through the Country Club Lima Hotel means to be part of the history of a city like Lima: cosmopolitan, traditional, unique. Each of the corners of the hotel hides an anecdote, a legend, a mystery, in addition to housing on its walls more than 300 works of art provided by the Pedro de Osma Museum.

The hotel inaugurates a new phase in its history: a remodeling that emphasizes the classic architecture that characterizes it, combining it with a contemporary design that is tailored to the needs of the current traveler. The result is a perfect symbiosis between the glamour of the past and the vanguard of the present. That's why today we are The New Classic.

Where the past and the present meet

The history of the Country Club Lima Hotel is intimately linked with the development and splendor of Lima.

Like all important story, it is best told by chapters. On May 26, 1925, the “Sociedad Anónima Propietaria del Country Club” was founded to then build the Country Club of Lima in an area of 1’300,000 square meters that belonged to the Conde de San Isidro, Lobatón, Matalechuzas and Orrantia estates. In 1926 a second business was founded, “Lima Country Club”, architects Jose Alvarez Calderón and Augusto Benavides were contracted, both architects were highly sought after for important projects during their time, for example the buildings surrounding Plaza San Martín for Alvarez Calderón , and Salaverry Avenue for Benavides. This is how the Country Club Lima Hotel began to raise expectations from its beginnings.

Its construction was commissioned to the Foundation Company of New York, established in Peru since 1920, which had already completed works such as the water channels and drainage of the

With 90 years in the heart of one of the most emblematic districts of Lima, the hotel is Cultural Patrimony of the Nation. There are few opportunities to experience a city from one of its architectural jewels.

Historic Center and the restoration of the Real Felipe Castle in Callao. Much of the building materials were imported from the United States and Britain. The American architect T.J. O'Brien completed the project and finalized the project.

The main building was inaugurated on February 8, 1927, at a ceremony presided over by President Augusto B. Leguía, followed by a luncheon for the President and his Cabinet, which summoned the most important political, intellectual and artistic figures of the city. It was one of the great events of the decade. Since then, the Country Club Lima Hotel was the favorite place of the Lima elite. The rendezvous center of the city.

The year 1997 marks an important milestone in the life of the Country Club Lima Hotel. The new owners carried out the remodeling that took the inn to the new era and turned it into a five star hotel. During this time the original architecture became highly valued, which resulted in the removal of some later constructions that did not correspond to the original quality, in order to maintain the main building's astonishing beauty. In addition the number of rooms was reduced, resulting in 83 high end rooms. The new hotel opened its doors on July 21, 1998.

To date, there are 90 years of great stories and historic figures, of local traditions and elegance. There was no better way to celebrate those years than honoring the excellence that has always lived within the walls. From May 2016 to September 2017 began a second and ambitious remodel, that involves the rooms keeping in mind the necessities of the modern day traveler. The idea is to respect the admired classic architecture, that gives its character and makes the stay unique; the spaces are renewed to reach the highest international standards of comfort and elegance.

The Argentinian architect Francisco Lopez Bustos most noted for the renovation of the Colon Theater of Buenos Aires and the legendary hotel Llao Llao in Bariloche was chosen for the project. He was in charge of the modernization and enhancement of this sample of Hispanic architecture from the first decades of the twentieth century. His challenge was to modernize it without altering its roots. The public areas kept the modest "chic limeño", adding accents in textiles and folders, dark woods, accessories and objects of patrimonial value. The technology in the rooms and suites were updated, the furniture was modernized and the perception of the space was modified by incorporating diffused and flush lighting on perimetral walls.

The result is a unique experience in the city: the warmth of a classic and lively architecture, with the contemporary air of a cosmopolitan and sophisticated lifestyle. Or simply, The New Classic.
