

La Perla ★★★★★

The gracious hospitality of the Costa family, combined with the authentic ‘Ladin’ culinary and cultural experiences, makes La Perla one of the Dolomites finest luxury hotels. Long known as a winter playground (home to the most extensive ski lift network in the world), more and more travelers are discovering the charms of the Dolomites in the summer with its many hiking and biking trails.

Costa Family

Michil Costa

◀ You meet Michil Costa and you’re curious. Is he a hotelier, a philosopher, a bon vivant? The answer is all and much more. Michil is his own man, someone not prone to follow but to lead. He has his very distinct ideas on how to run a hotel and interestingly (and to the benefit of his guests) he combines the operations at the exceptionally beautiful hotel La Perla with his passions for the local Ladin culture, social justice and philanthropy.

You see for Michil, running a hotel is not just an art form (it is of course) but it’s a responsibility, one he takes very seriously. So when you meet Michil, and you’ll be pleased you did, you will enjoy a conversation ranging perhaps from the richness of Ladin history, the importance of being grateful and giving back and, most likely, his dedication to his fantastic wine cellar which includes the largest private collection of Sassacaia in the world. He will insist you taste the Michelin-starred cuisine at his La Stüa de Michil restaurant and he will generously pour from La Cantina. Hospitality for Michil is something very personal, it’s a spirit that seems to run in the entire Costa family and above all, it is about being authentic, being true to your land and your culture.

“ This has become one of our very favorite hotels in the world! We have stayed here twice and have resolved to try and return at least every two years. The property is exceptional, but what makes La Perla special is the Costa Family, whose warmth and hospitality has infected the staff so that staying there is such a pleasure every minute of the day and in every corner of the hotel. ”
