

The First Roma Dolce seamlessly blends the elegant design of a 19th-century building with the charms of Via del Corso, one of the most iconic streets of Rome. A boutique and warm residential atmosphere with bespoke 5 star service set the stage for the perfectly crafted stay.

The 19th-century building was designed by the Italian architect and urban planner Giuseppe Valadier, who created the elliptical plan of Piazza del Popolo, then connecting it via stairs and terraces to the Pincio and to the Borghese Gardens.

The same architectural team behind The First Roma Arte, its sister property just a short walk away, gave life to this exquisite and refined hotel with 23 suites and guest rooms.
